- (2) Without limiting or detracting from the general application of section 33(2) of the Act, an act or omission of a dominant licensee, whether independently or in any form of collusion with others, constitutes or amounts to an abuse of its dominant position where the act or omission involves-
 - (a) price abuses or anti-competitive pricing including-
 - (i) price squeezing by a dominant licensee, of the margin of profit available to a competitor that requires wholesale or retail services from the dominant licensee, by increasing the prices for such wholesale or retail services required by that competitor, or decreasing the prices of such services in markets where they compete, or both;
 - (ii) requiring or inducing a supplier to refrain from selling to a competitor;

 - (l) pre-emptive acquisition or securing of scarce facilities or resources, including rights of way, required by another licensee for the operation of its business, with the effect of denying the use of the facilities or resources to that other licensee;
 - (m) supplying interconnection or other competitive services at prices below forward-looking incremental costs as contemplated in section 49(11) of the Act;
 - (n) engaging in unfair methods of competition that improperly deter or are likely to deter entry into relevant markets or restrict or are likely to restrict existing competition in those markets for reasons unrelated to the availability, price or quality of the service that a prospective or current licensee offers or seeks to offer through-

 - (r) any other conduct that, in the opinion of the Authority, prevents or lessens or is likely to prevent or lessen competition substantially in a relevant market.
- (3) For the avoidance of doubt and without limiting the general effect of this regulation, the following conditions shall constitute vertical restraints imposed by a dominant licensee, that potentially reduce competition-
- (a) resale price maintenance which is the practice whereby a licensee and a reseller of that licensee's products and services agree that the reseller will sell that licensee's products or services at certain prices at or above a price floor or at or below a price ceiling;

 - (g) full-line forcing which is the practice of obligating resellers to sell a licensee's product line in its entirety;
 - (h) quantity forcing, which refers to pricing schemes that reward a purchaser for buying some threshold quantity from a supplier of telecommunications products and services;
 - (i) non-linear pricing, which involves a pricing strategy of not charging the same price for each unit sold and so becomes an indirect form of price discrimination.
- (4) Without limiting sub regulations (2) or (3), "abusive conduct" generally includes-
- (a) conduct which interferes with the competitive process by adversely affecting a consumer, directly through the price charged, or indirectly through raising and enhancing entry barriers or increasing competitors' costs; and
 - (b) anti-competitive conduct that-
 - (i) exploits a consumer or supplier through excessively high prices; or
 - (ii) discriminatory prices or other terms and conditions through removing or limiting competition from existing competitors; or
 - (iii) excludes new licensees from entering a relevant market or market segment.

Part 5 – ANTI-COMPETITIVE AGREEMENTS

14. Anti-competitive agreements

- (1) In accordance with section 33(5) of the Act, any agreement determined by the Authority to be anti-competitive will be automatically null and void.
- (2) Without limiting or detracting from the general application of section 33(5) of the Act, an agreement between a licensee or a decision by an association of licensees, however constituted, or a concerted practice restricting or distorting competition in the telecommunications sector, constitutes an anti-competitive agreement.

- (g) agreements with a potential to result in higher prices or reductions in output of telecommunications services or equipment;
- (h) agreements between licensees and entities at different levels in the supply chain as a downstream reseller or an upstream provider of communications services, such as vertical price fixing, vertical market allocation or exclusive dealing;
- (i) tie-in sales and bundling, which is the practice of making the sale of one product conditional on the purchase of another product;
